Sticky situation!

At a recent activity, the editor noticed the little girl (in yellow) standing, staring at Forrest. Her hands were so sticky she could barely move her fingers. One of our members (name withheld) walked by Forrest and rubbed his hands on the clean pants leg of Forrest--thinking the little girl would follow suit. She just stood there looking at Forrest and Forrest kept looking at her to guard off any attempt for her to wipe her hands on his clean uniform.

What was she thinking?

- That guy that just walked by and wiped his hands on that guy's knee--I could do the same and get this sticky mess off my hands.
- Why is that man looking at me, I haven't done anything--yet.
- I don't want to mess with that guy--he has a big stick and might hit me.
- Why is he dressed like that?
- He looks like a nice old man.

What was Forrest thinking?

- Don't do it--that guy that just walked by was trying to get you in trouble.
- If you mess up my clean uniform, I will be in trouble at home.
- I'm keeping an eye on you.
- She looks like a sweet little girl but I can see the meanness in her eyes!
- Why am I afraid of this little girl?
- Where is her mother?

Conclusion:

Forrest would up getting a kiss from the little girl who had been taught to respect her elders.

Blue Licks Musical Tribute--Rev. Forrest Chilton, Chuck Scott and Charlie Scott sing "The Parting Glass" at the Memorial Service at Blue Licks.

Blue Licks

Vic Bitter, Joe Parish and Marshall Wilkins fire their guns in the Black-Powder Gun Salute at Blue Licks.

Dennis Scott presents the chapter wreath.

Chuck Scott, Joe Noffsinger and Charlie Scott fold the American Flag in the Nation's Tribute. Rev. Forrest Chilton read the meaning of each fold during the ceremony.

Musical entertainment at the luncheon was provided by Larry Baysinger.
